Howard with Helen at Angel Delights

As you rush to your letter box to pick-up this magazine the nights will be considerably lighter. The clocks will go forward on Sunday, 29 March. What a relief. After a quiet start to the year, the property market has got a bit busier. Please come and see us to handle your Conveyancing. You can have the benefit of my considerable experience. You can come to see us, ask questions and generally be in touch with your transaction. That is not true if you try to use an "on line" outfit. I am able to go to see my clients in Hadleigh if needs be. We receive lots of enquiries about Lasting Powers of Attorney and can help you also with your Wills.

Now I am sure that you read things other than my column. Do you ever have "This England". My mother, Brenda, has a subscription as a present from one of her best friends, Muriel. When I heard that Angel Delights at 85 High Street, Tel. 01473 828191, had won the award for the Finest Tea Shop in England, I had to get in contact with its owner Helen Golland. As you can see, I joined Helen for tea just outside her shop. The tea shop is very popular and that is no surprise. Helen's scones are fresh, moist and pert and are found in sweet or savoury including cranberry and coconut. There are light lunches and afternoon tea is £5.75 and a more luxurious affair can be enjoyed at £12.50. Fine bone china and tiered cake plates await you. It is all so much nicer than these horrible chains with their tasteless mass produced eats and cups of coffee like buckets. Helen also provides an excellent outside catering service for weddings, funerals and such like but better to try and enjoy these goodies whilst you are still alive.

So many of you want to know more about Frank and Maria. Maria has had a little trouble with her varicose veins. So unsightly, but it comes from all the standing up. Last year, Maria was bent double pulling Frank's turnips before they became woody. It didn't do her any good. Frank drove me in the Number 1 car to Finchley so that I could go to an NSPCC quiz with my dear friend Elizabeth. I seemed to pick up a nasty bug which has been on my chest. Frank waited with the car whilst my mother, my Secretary Janet and I enjoyed that new film "Fifty Shades of Grey". Everyone winks knowingly at the mere mention of the name, however, it is quite a serious story dealing with a relationship where the gentleman was a "dominator" and all of the paraphernalia that that entailed. It was a public showing. We must have been an amusing sight to the hoards of teenage girls that filled the cinema to bursting point. Why not go and see the film.
